saw here or there in town or country, do not certainly belie their reputation, for they are mostly tall and well made and have the chiseled high brow, the thin aquiline nose, the goddess mouth, peculiar to the Caucasian type. They all, high and low, affect the Orient garb—wear long, dark, almost trailing garments, round fur caps, or white cloths, turban-fashioned, but cumbrough if not fantastically if not brously if not fantastically, if not picturesquely, falling in folds and flaps to their shoulders; and all are girt with a silver belt on which hang a ponderous cimeter and a long yataghan. The practice of bearing arms is as universal among these Christians as among their most savage Mussulman fellow-subects, though there is nothing warlike, or even very manly, in the look or bearing of these backbone-less Georgians, who cannos forget how little their weapons availed them against Persians and Turks, from whose inroads they could find no other escape than in an ignoble surrender of their national existence, no refuge from the Turk except in the arms of the Russ. Of the beauty of the Georgian women no very striking specimens came anywhere in our way. Here, as everywhere else in Russia, females of all ranks have their cigarette cases in their pockets; but here for the first time l was applied to by a lady—a de mure more than middle-aged lady for "a light." A Chicago man, who claims to be a diamond expert, gives the following information in which owners of gems may be interested: "There are a great many so-called solitaires sold as single stones which, when put under the blow pipe, will come apart in single pieces, put together for the American market. I have detected them and separated them. There is not one diamond in ten sold in our market but what is the refuse of the London market. They are sold at a fictitious value, so that not half the selling price can be got when put upon the market. Nearly all are off color, specked or feathered. > And the Crank's Vanity is Greatly Tickled.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—As soon as the criminal court opened this morning, Guiteau shouted out: "A crank in Chicago says I talked with him about this case. I don't know the man. It is false.

Colonel Corkhill called, as the first witness in the case, Mrs. Julia M. Wilson, of Leadville, Col. She knew L. W. Guiteau from her earliest recollection. He was her uncle. Witness gave a most feeling account of the life and character of her mother, Mrs. Maypard, who, it had been alleged by the defense, had died insane, but who really died of pneumonia in 1856. Guiteau became enraged at Judge Porter and shouted, "Now held your thunder till you get to the jury, Judge; you are doing this sort of thing too patent office report about twenty much.

Judge Porter, without noticing the outburst, continued in the most impressive manner to argue his point, when Guiteau broke in again, "I'm not a criminal, and I won't be till convicted. Witness was questioned in regard to various members of her family, and stated positively she never saw indications of insanity in any of them. Speaking of the prisoner's father, L. W. Guiteau, the witness said: "My uncle Luther visited me frequently, and I loved him with very tender affection. Our whole family were delighted with his lovely Christian character, and such a thought as that he might be in any degree of unsound mind never entered my head." Witness was subjected to close and critical cross-examination. She was asked if she entertained any prejudice against having hereditary insanity alleged in this defense, and replied: "I object to any unfair statements being made upon that subject. might dislike to have it set up. For myself facts can make no difference." Her evidence in chief remained unshakrelevant. The prisoner-Mrs. Wilson seems to be a very bright lady, but she is opposed to having it appear that there is any insanity in the family. That's the matter with her testimony.

The President adds to his answers the following: I have been requested by counsel for the defense to produce a letter written by the prisoner since his indictment; that letter was received by me in October last, and was not preserved, I do not recollect its contents particularly, except that it contained some claim of his having rendered some important services to the Republican party during the Presidential campaign, and an appeal for the postponement of his trial to give him time to prepare for defense. The next witness was Rev. R. A McArthur, pastor of the Calvary Baptist church, New York. As soon as he was sworn the prisoner remarked: "I know Dr. McArthur very well; he is a fine fellow, very high tohed in every way; I owe him $95.

When the cross examination was finished the prisoner, looking up at the clock, announced that it was 3 o'clock and time to go home. He also inquired: "How many more witnesses like that have you got, Corkhill? I think it is an outrage on the public. If you had to pay some of that money yourself, you would go slow."

THE VERDICT.

"In the matter of the inquisition on the body of Charles B. Hamill, deceased, held at Decatur, Itl., on the 4th day of December, 1851, we, the undersigned jurors, sworn to inquire of the death of Charles B. Hamill, on oath, do find that he came to his death by being run over by switch engine No. 13t, on the Wabash, St. Louis & Facific R. R., cast of water street, Decatur, Macon county, Itl.—The engine, from ordence given, was running at a high rate of speed, from 10 to 15 miles per hour, as evidence to that effect has proved. Signed—W. J. Myers, forcman; H. T. Morrison, W. S. Greening, A. F. Gephard, J. S. McCleiland and J. A. Brockway.

The witnesses who testified were Frank Blakeney, engineer at Shellabarger & Co.'s mill; D. H. Monahan, Wabash township; Jas. Gogerty, Wabash switchman, and Charles H. Hughes.

The Next State Tournament. Of late the REPUBLICAN has made frequent reference to the steps that are being taken by the active and long-headed members of the board of control of the Illinois Firemen's Association toward selecting the place of holding the next annual state tournament. Last Friday State Secretary Housum, of this city, went to Chicago to confer with President Bullwinkle with reference to the matter, and while there he made up a list of cash prizes to be competed for by hose, hook and ladder and steam engine companies. The aggregate was about $10,000 This list was submitted to the members of the Chicago Driving Park Association, and a policeman; E Shultz, of Harristown that association would vote the firemen proper time. "Dan," on receiving the proposition was made to the effect that if that sum, then the 1883 tournament would cane, spoke briefly, expressing his sur-October next. The L., D. & S. Railway has been consolidated with the I , B. & W. R. R The information is contained in the following, which appeared in the Chicago News of the 5th:

New York, Dec. 7.—5tary western railroad men have been to this city during the past fortnight, and not a few projects of more or less importance are in various stages of progress. Prominent among those gentlemen from the West have been the controllers or the Indiana, Bloomington and Western and of the Indiana, Bloomington and Western and of the Indianapolis, Decatur and Springfield railroads, and active negotiations have been carried on between the representatives of these lines, looking to a coalition. Negotiations reaching a successful issue, and the announcement was made in Wail street that the two roads and their interests had been united and would hereafter be operated as one property. The terms of the alilance, as shally adopted, were substantially that the Indiana, Bloomington and Western shall be the operating company, bearing all expenses and collecting all earnings. Out of the press receipts thirty per cent is to go to the Indianapolis, Decaur and Springfield, that road being granted a minimum of receipts to the amount of $200,000 per annum.

Many enterprises of importance are said to be under consideration by the new management, among which will be the early extension of the Indianapolis. Decatur and Springfield to St. Louis and Kansas City. It is also proposed to reach out toward other lines, and by further combinations establish a system of railroads which shall not only pass through the best parts of Indiana and fillines, but have direct communication with the great cities of the East and West. Mr. Henry Graves was elected to-day to the directory of the Indianapolis, Decatur and Springfield railroad, to fill the seat made vacant by the resignation of Mr.T. B. Atkins. R. Atkins.

A Caning Affair.

Yesterday was the 48th anniversary of the birth of our fellow-townsman, D. H. Heilman, the well known Merchant street grocer, and he was made a pleased victim of a successful surprise, being presented with a costly and handsome gold headed ebony cane by the eight employes at the Heilman store, as a token of their best wishes and esteem. Mr. Heilman had gone home to his supper in the evening, where he found a number of friends as sembled to pass the evening with the family, and later came the donors of the gift, marshaled by Rev. D.
